Toxicology

The Forensic Toxicology Laboratory offers internships that are project based. Often projects involve the development and testing of methods, but can include other technical and administrative tasks. The projects are designed to teach interns extraction methods, instrumental analysis, and statistical analysis. Internship length may vary from a single semester to a full year, depending on the duration of the project. Interns are expected to be available between 15-40 hours per week during normal business hours throughout the program. At the end of the program, the intern is expected to provide a presentation to the OCME staff discussing the assigned project and the outcome. Students currently enrolled in an undergraduate or graduate program in toxicology or related field are eligible to apply.
